

FLORENCE | ART+
BIENNALE | DESIGN

18 - 26 October 2025
XV Edition

Contents

- Biography 03
- Paintings on display 05
- Creative Process 16
- My vision 19
- Biennale Information 20
- Contact 21

The unique result of oil painting gives life to my artistic universe.

Born in 1991 in Annecy (France), I have been drawing since my early childhood, and art has always been part of my life. I grew up surrounded by the masterpieces of Dali, Caravaggio, Rembrandt, Van Eyck, Bosch, Goya... painters who have shaped my eye and imagination.

Since 2015, I have been developing an artistic project that explores the major themes of our passage through life, at the crossroads of our time and history: birth, death, illness, love, war, exile... I stage the ancient objects I collect by creating ephemeral installations in my living room (a forest, a pond, a desert...) to bring my concepts to life. I use photography to capture these moments. Each final image is the result of a meticulous assembly, in Photoshop, of hundreds of shots taken with candlelight or a small light source.

In 2023, a trip to Naples marked a turning point in my life. Standing before "The Martyrdom of Saint Ursula" by Caravaggio, I had a revelation: I must become a painter and paint my artistic universe in oil. Without a teacher, I embarked on this journey alone. I bought my first tubes of paint, a multitude of art books, observed the techniques of the masters, and painted.

Today, I create my paintings on blank linen canvases and paint my artistic concepts in oil. After several exhibitions in private collectors' spaces, I decided, in early 2025, to share my art with the public.

Paintings on display at the Florence Biennale 2025

Personal exhibition space 300 x 250 cm

ARTIST'S NAME + SPONSORS

250 CM

100 CM

100 CM

100 CM

SOMMAIRE - SOMMAIRE - SOMMAIRE - SOMMAIRE - SOMMAIRE

The Illusion of the Landless Souls - Oil on canvas - 116x73 cm - MMXXV

Details of the painting

Lesieur^{XXIV}

Translucent Delight - Oil on canvas - 92x65 cm - MMXXIV

Detail of the painting

Famiglia Fiandri II - Oil on canvas - 27x41 cm - MMXXIV

Famiglia Fiandri I - Oil on canvas - 27x41 cm - MMXXIV

Detail of the painting Famiglia Fiandri II

Details of the painting Famiglia Fiandri I

Nimrod - Oil on canvas - 33x46 cm - MMXXV (Painting in progress)

Detail of the painting (Painting in progress)

XXIV
Lesueur

Asphyxia - Oil on canvas - 38x48 cm - MMXXIV

Detail of the painting

My creative process...

Work on the concept and composition

Research and selection of wood for installation

Preparing to set up the installation

Installation setup

Finalisation of the installation

Photoshoot

Creation of the digital image in Photoshop from the captured shots

Digital image used as a reference to create the painting

Drawing the scene on canvas

Painting in progress

Painting in progress

Finished oil painting

Each of my paintings is a birth, the fruit of a long gestational process. Time stretches as a tenuous thread between the present and eternity, seeking the slightest breach in which to sow doubt. Saturated pigments, transformed into softly rigid, glossy matter, anchor themselves to the linen, and through the assemblages of miniature sculptures form a dark yet extremely luminous narrative.

These forgotten fragments, having outlived their protectors, were once outdated but now become the face of Humanity. To the sound of the sea a veil of worlds circling in the storm of genetic memory. Children of Wooden Legs offer my phantasmagorical vision to a new audience.

The matter beneath my fingertips: old paper, worm-eaten wood, cracked porcelain and one-eyed dolls: looks at me and whisper a barely audible melody: What use am I? None! But tomorrow what use will humanity be? The obsolescence of grey matter infects the landscape with achromatopsia.

Emotion invades my senses and consumes my mind, imposing a staging upon me as the only path to appeasement from News so heavy with consequences. These creatures, in a discreet and relevant manner, give through their presence an homage to their progenitors. A still life: drowned in the deepest darkness: sees the light gushing in, freezing emotions in a final dance of shadow and light.

Allan Lesueur

Biennale information

Allan Lesueur

Annecy - FRANCE

allanlesueur.com

contact@allanlesueur.com

+33 6 19 70 41 52

